Keith was a gentle intelligent man that liked to discuss art and italian opera and our love of many fine films.. colin his son has grown into an intelligent and loving person. “ I can't express my heartbreak enough. I just saw this news this morning. I knew Keith well when I ran the art foundry in Milwaukee, he was like a brother. We lost touch. I would occasionally try to find him on Facebook and such. This morning I found this. I feel like I was punched in the gut. He was warm, funny, so very talented. He was honest even when it didn't benefit him. He was always there for me when things got rough. The world is poorer and greyer place without him.

Just heart broken.
