“ I first met Paris when I moved to Texas to get to know my mom Barbara better. Paris welcomed me with open arms and always made me feel special.

My fondest memories of him were when I would go places with him and my mom he would always proudly say that he was with the two most beautiful women in Texas.

He was ornery to - I remember going to a river with the family and we were swinging from a rope to jump into the river and just as I was about to jump he yelled out - “!just watch out for the water moccasins!” Needless to say, I decided I didn’t want to let go of that rope after all - until I realized he was pulling my leg. LOL

He would also try to convince me to eat meat that I KNEW was not beef but he would swear it was to try and get me to try it.

He used to always tell me “don’t ever tell anyone here you are from California and you’ll be OK, Texans don’t look too highly on people from California” . Jenifer teased me about being a “Californian”.

He was always nice to me and made me feel accepted and special. Yes, he could be ornery, but it was a playful ornery so I didn’t mind too much.

Rest in peace Paris!
