“THE Stories I Enjoyed" sitting the Barber Chair" I was saddened to hear of Cowboys passing. I spoke with him the previous week as had my hair cut. He was such a kind and gentle man as he spoke of his family and life growing up in Texas. We joked about making lye soap and what it was like when things were simple. I always teased him about hi. Eating that ham sandwich everyday in his barber chair by the window. You could pass by any day and if it was lunch time it was ham sandwich time for Cowboy. He was an artist at what he did, his flat tops were perfect everytime and was one of only few that could do one. Their will always be an empty chair in this world that no on else can fill cause James will not be behind it doing what he did best. Cary Wright
