“ One night, a few years ago, I called you because I couldn't fall asleep. You started telling me a story about when I was little and I finally fell asleep listening to your voice. You sent me a text telling me good night, you loved me and that you'd call me in the morning. This is the memory that I will carry with me; you cared and wanted to help me feel better in my adult life. I will remember your southern voice, distant yet so familiar. We connected the best way we knew how and I am grateful for that. I have no regrets about us and pray you are at peace. - Babygirl.
